DIEGO VENCATO LIEVE

Industrial designer Diego Vencato, based in Milan, Italy, has re-conceptualized furniture design with a new take on wood. The base of the Lieve table is draped and folded to mimic fabric, which is made of wooden mesh. The top of the table is a mix of steel and glass.

PACO CAMUS LUXOR

The private collection of Paco Camus features avant-garde wooden furniture, including the Luxor, a table composed of a metal structure that supports both the marble and wood material of the piece. The marble, named “forest brown” is sourced from Rajasthan, India and blends in with the criss-crossed wood on the tabletop. pacocamus.com

HORM RIDDLED TABLE

The architecture and urban design firm Steven Holl Architects has taken its skills as a builder and translated them into furniture design. The Riddled Table, designed for Horm, is comprised of a porous surface, which sits atop lasercut Canaletto Walnut legs with a vegetable oil finish, making the piece appear to be floating off of the ground. horm.it
